ment strategies. Previous winners of the prestigious award, which is accompanied by a $5,000 check, include Milton Friedman, William Tomek, Paul Farris and Merton Miller.

Associate professor Campbell R. Harvey was elected a Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research, based in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

In collaboration with professor Gary W. Loveman of Harvard Business School and former HBS research associate David T. Kotchen, Fuqua professor Simon Johnson's work has led to the most comprehensive collection of field-based teaching cases currently available on Central and Eastern Europe. The product of three years of research, Managing Business Enterprises After Communism (Harvard Business School Publishing) provides Western students and managers with concrete skills for working in the reforming post-Communist economies.

Professors Johnson and Loveman have also collaborated on an in-depth analytical history of business development in Poland, to be published later this year.

Associate Professor S. Viswanathan, was granted tenure by Duke University. Viswanathan, chosen as Teacher of the Year by the MBA Class of 1994, teaches corporate finance; his research interests include market micro-structure and non-linear asset pricing. Currently he is working on a study of foreign stock exchanges.

Duke University has promoted four assistant professors at Fuqua to the rank of associate professor. They are Ravi Bansal, James E. Smith, Harris Sondak and Wanda T. Wallace.

Fuqua professor Richard M. Burton completed his term as chairman of Duke University's Academic Council on July 1, 1994, after a two-year tenure.

Student Awards

Fuqua students Derrick Boone and Sherry Ellerbe have been awarded the largest Ph.D. and MBA scholarship awards available from the National Black MBA Association. Boone received the H. Naylor Fitzhugh Award, a $10,000 scholarship, while Ellerbe received the Barbara Stubblefield Award, a $4,000 scholarship.

A trio of Fuqua first-year MBA students captured the championship trophy in the 13th annual Notre Dame Invitational MBA Case Competition, held March 20-22 in South Bend, Indiana. The victory was the School's second in the past five years in one of the nation's oldest and most prestigious case competitions.

Teams from Fuqua, Georgetown University, Notre Dame, the University of Michigan and the University of Texas were judged on their case presentations by a panel of faculty and business leaders. The Fuqua team, made up of first-year students Thomas Gerlacher, Barry Jordan and Michael Schreiber, was coached by executive-in-residence William A. Sax.

Recipients of the 1994 Asa T. Spaulding, Sr. Leadership Award were Carla J. Kelly, Paula Mary Kelley and Theodore L. Fleming III. The annual awards are presented to Fuqua students who, through their work in the Durham and Duke community, exemplify the ideals and efforts of the late Asa T. Spaulding, Sr., president of North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, the largest black-owned financial institution in the country.

THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD RECOGNIZES FUQUA STUDENTS WHO HAVE MADE AN OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO THE SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY THROUGH THEIR ACTIVITY IN CLUBS, SYMPOSIA, VOLUNTEER WORK OR ELECTED POSITIONS. SHOWN ABOVE WITH DEAN THOMAS F. KELLER ARE CLASS OF 1994 RECIPIENTS (L TO R) EDDIE TERRENCE CHAVIS, CARLA J. KELLY AND MINNA SUE GREENSPUN.
