The Francis Blake Crofton referred to here was born in Crossboyne in the Barony of Clanmorris in 1842, the son of a Church of Ireland Clergyman. He is not connected in any way with the Crofton family who are the subject of this research.
The following are records of the Croftons of Cloondaff. Timothy, who was listed in the Tithes in Derrygarve, is never mentioned again in any record pertaining to Derrygarve. Even when Burrishoole parish introduced record keeping in 1872, Crofton is not a name that features in Derrygarve.

Introduction

The accounts of the families given here are presented in a version of the narrative style devised by Sir Bernard Burke, the originator of such works as "Burke's Peerage" and "Burke's Landed Gentry." Using this system, as much information as possible about each individual can be displayed. Each generation is designated by a common series of letters or numbers. The earliest known male ancestor in each family is given at the beginning of each account; because, in most cases, none of his brothers’ or sisters’ names can be established with certainty, he is not given any number or letter. Each of his known children - the second generation - are designated by an Arabic number: 1, 2, 3 etc.; their children - the third generation - are designated by upper case or capital Roman letters: A, B, C etc.; the fourth generation from the earliest known ancestor are designated by lower case Roman numerals - i, ii, iii, iv etc.; the fifth generation, by lower case Roman letters - a, b, c etc. To help distinguish one generation from another, each successive generation is stepped-in further to the right - about one-third of an inch - than the previous one.

The main sources used in the construction of this genealogy, besides the details provided by the enquirer, were the Tithe Applotment Books compiled circa 1834, the General Valuation of Rateable Property in Ireland, 1856 (also called "Griffith's Valuation")\(^1\); the parochial registers of baptism and marriage for all denominations, the civil registers of births, marriages and deaths and the census of population, 1901 & 1911. In all cases where both civil records of birth and church records of baptism were available, both were used but the baptism record is generally nearer the correct date of birth than the former.\(^2\) It should be noted that The North Mayo Family Research Centre holds records only up to 1911\(^3\), and so any dates later than this, and included here are taken either from the enquirer's own information, from gravestone inscriptions or the 1911 census. Please also note that surnames and townland names are recorded in this report as they were noted on the records. Due to high levels of illiteracy in the past, the translation from Irish and the recording by third parties of family details for births, deaths, and marriages, surnames and townlands occurred in a wide variety of spellings. In the majority of cases, family surnames had become standardised by 1901. Where a name and date of birth or baptism is given, with no further details, it is taken that no further identifiable

\(^1\) The Tithe Applotment Books and Griffith’s Valuations are used where applicable.

\(^2\) Discrepancies in dates between civil birth and baptismal records are quite common in the nineteenth century, and can usually be explained by the fact that fines were payable for late civil registration of births, and the birth-date was often brought forward to avoid such a fine. Since baptisms usually took place within a week of birth, these records are usually a better indication of when a birth actually took place.
references to that individual were found in the data-base in the form of marriage, census, death or gravestone records.

Griffiths Valuation of Tenements\(^1\) surveyed circa 1855, lists Mary Crofton leasing a house and land at Cloondaff, civil parish of Addergoole,\(^2\) amounting to a one third share (with Bridget McGreevy and John Colleran) in 84 acres 0 roods and 24 perches, leased for a total of £7 10s. from Col. Charles Knox. Please see Extract No.3 for details and location of this holdings.

Griffiths Valuation of Tenements does not list anyone of the name Crofton in the townland of Derrygarve, civil parish of Burrishoole.\(^3\)

Roman Catholic records for the parish of Addergoole are extant from 1840 – 1919 for baptisms and from 1840 - 1920 for marriages. Civil registration of births, deaths and marriages for the entire country commenced in 1864. Roman Catholic Church records for the parish of Burrishoole/Newport are extant from 1872-1900 for baptisms and marriages.

1. Griffith’s Valuation of Tenements: When the Poor Law extended to Ireland in 1838, the country was further divided into a number of administrative areas known as Poor Law Unions. A workhouse was built in each union to house the destitute poor. To finance this public assistance program, a rate was levied on each property, the rate varied with the value placed on the property by the surveyors appointed for this purpose. At first valuation of property for the purpose of determining the rates was done locally. After a few years, however, the Poor Law Commissioners appointed Richard Griffith to carry out a survey and valuation of the whole country. This was duly completed and the results were published between 1848-1865. Officially known as The Primary Valuation of Tenements, it has come to be known as Griffith’s Valuation for short. Where the term ‘Office’ is used in the Description of Tenements this term refers to farm buildings.

2. Addergoole Parish, Eadar-Ghabhal, (land) between two river-prongs. This parish occupies the southern portion of the barony of Tirawley. It is bounded on the north by Crossmolina parish; east by Lough Conn; south by the parishes of Burrishoole, Islandeady, Aglish and Turlough; and west by Burrishoole parish. It contains 36,629 acres, 2 roods, 28 perches, statute measure, including 2,927 acres, 0 roods, 31 perches of Lough Conn, 438 acres, 2 roods, 27 perches of Beltra Lough, and 397 acres, 0 roods, 17 perches of small loughs. It is in the Diocese of Tuam, the Rector being the Reverend Richard St. George, and the Parish Priest the Reverend William Cawley. It is irregularly oblong in shape. Its greatest length from north to south is about 2½ statute miles and its greatest width from west to east about 3½ miles. There are large tracts of bog and mountain in this parish, including most of Mount Nephin, which rises to the height of 2,646 ft. above sea level. Taken from O’Donovan’s Ordnance Survey field name books, 1838.

3. Burrishoole Parish Situated in Burrishoole Barony, on the north-eastern shore of Clew Bay. It contains 55,239 acres, 2 roods, 4 perches, statute measure, including 26 acres, 3 roods, 20 perches of Beltra Lough, 1,036 acres, 2 roods, 12 perches of Lough Feagh, 426 acres, 2 roods, 15 perches of Furnace Lough, and 314 acres, 0 roods, 19 perches of smaller loughs. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Tuam, and the tithes amount to £350. About 1486, Richard de Bourke, Lord MacWilliam Oughter, founded a monastery here under the Invocation of the Virgin Mary, for Dominican Friars; some remains of it may still be seen.
“A great patron is held here on the 4th of August, being St. Dominick’s day.” A great number of islands belong to this parish. Taken from O’Donovan’s Ordnance Survey field name books, 1838.
The Tithe Applotment Books\textsuperscript{1} surveyed circa 1830 lists a Timothy Crofton in Derrygarve\textsuperscript{2} townland. This man has no apparent links to other Croftons in any of our records. He is listed as Crofton & Co. This meant that on his own, he did not have enough land to qualify for the tithe. The custom in such a scenario was that the landlord had to pay his share for him. Many landlords, having estates with hundreds of tenants with holdings too small for the tithe, would circumvent having to pay their tenant’s tithes by grouping them together until the aggregate amounted to a tithe payment. The head tenant was responsible for collecting the tithe.

There is a possibility given the effect of the famine on land occupancy in Ireland, that Timothy’s holding was moved or ceased to be in his name when he died. This possibility is brought about by comparing the land occupancy in Derrygarve between the Tithe Applotment Book list of 1832 and that of Griffith’s Valuation of 1856.

In 1832, Timothy Crofton was one of 13 tenants, which is the smallest number possible in that townland, since many others may not have qualified for the tithe. By 1856, there are only two tenants sharing the 265 acres of the townland between them, leased from Sir Rd.O’Donnell, Bt. One of these men, Roger Loughney, had the herd’s house, and this townland had the appearance of one which was cleared of tenants around the famine, and used by the landlord for more intensive agricultural use. There is some evidence that Sir Richard O’Donnell evicted many of his tenants and was engaged in clearing some lands for his own use. This might be supported by the fact of his financial difficulties around this time.

There is a Martin Crofton listed on the tithe applotment book for Cloondamph\textsuperscript{3} (Cloondaff), in the parish of Addergoole, just east of Derrygarve. He was listed as head of a group (& co) and paid £21 in tithes, which was clearly the amount imposed on a group, as it was a very large sum.

\textbf{1. Tithe Applotment Books:} Tithes in general were defined as the Tenth Part of Profits arising from the use of land, stock or a man’s personal income, and at first were payable in kind. They were classed under three heading: (a) Praedial Tithes (income from the sale of corn, wood etc). (b) Mixed Tithes (income from the sale of stock, pigs etc). (c) Personal Tithes assessed on income from labour. The Tithes went towards the upkeep of the Rector of each parish church. The composition Act of 1823 specified that Tithes which had hitherto been payable in kind, should now be paid in money. As a result, it was necessary to carry out a valuation of the entire country, civil parish by civil parish, to determine how much would be payable by each landholder. This was done over the ensuing 15 years, up to the abolition of Tithes in 1838. Not surprisingly, Tithes were fiercely resented by those who were not members of the Church of Ireland.
2. Derrygarrow: Doire Garbh, rough oak wood. Situated near the centre of the south-east quarter of the parish, about 2 miles north of Newport. It is bounded on the north by Tawnaghgrania (Tawnagrania); east by Doogary and Derryhillagh; south by Derrintaggart; and west by Cloonfoher. The property of Sir Richard A. O’Donnell. It contains 265 acres, 3 roods, 39 perches, including 2 acres, 0 roods, 5 perches of water. Only 44 acres are cultivated. The whole townland is let at will at the yearly rent of £22 9 shillings. Co. Cess, 3 shillings 3 ½d. yearly for each of 22 ½ acres. Soil, light mountain, producing potatoes, barley, corn and flax.

3. Cloondaff: Cluain Damh, lawn or meadow of the oxen. In the south of the parish and north of Beltra Lough. Contains 2,130 acres, 2 roods, 0 perches, statute measure. Proprietor, Charles Nesbitt Knox, Esq. Let to 42 occupying tenants, all Catholics, on leases of lives, at a yearly rent of from 40 shillings to £6 per farm. Tithe withheld by the tenantry. Soil moory, producing oats and potatoes. Bog plenty. Prevailing family names; McGowan and McCarmick. Glenhesk Roman Catholic Chapel, capable of accommodating 400 people, is in this townland. Loughanawillin Loughs (2), a corn mill and a pound, for impounding cattle, are in this townland. Beltra Lake is on the south-east boundary, and a stream flows along the west boundary from north to south.
The Genealogy of the Crofton Families of Cloondaff, Addergoole, Co.Mayo
The earliest ancestors we can trace with certainty are Bridget, Martin, Timothy, John and Thomas Crofton:

1. Bridget Crofton married on the 30-Apr-1846 Thomas Sweeney, Cloondaff. The witnesses to the marriage were Thomas Crofton and Mary Salmon.

   Thomas and Bridget had the following issue:

   A. Mary Sweeney, Cloondaff the child of Thomas Sweeney and Bridget Crofton was baptised on the 22-Jan-1847. The sponsors were Martin Crofton and Bridget Rowland.

   We have no further records of this family.

2. Martin Crofton married on the 24-Feb-1846 Honor Mulheran. The witnesses to the marriage were George Crofton and Bridget Crofton.

   After marriage Martin and Honor had the following issue:

   A. Martin Crofton, Balltigue, the child of Martin Crofton and Honor Mulheran was baptised on the 30-May-1847. The sponsors were Unknown McManamon and Mary Crofton.

   Martin Crofton, Balltigue, a farmer, the son of Martin Crofton, a labourer, married on the 22-Jan-1874 Mary Boggan, Balltigue, the daughter of Martin Boggan, a labourer. The witnesses to the marriage were Michael Mulheran and Ann Boggan. Married in Lahardane by Patk Mc Hale. Mary Baggan and both witnesses could not write.

   After marriage, Martin and Mary resided at Ballytiege. They had the following issue:

Following Stephen’s death in 1893, Rebecca emigrated to the United States with her children George, Etty, Thomas and Bridget. They departed Queenstown on the 25-Aug-1897, on board the Aurania, arriving at New York on the 7-Sep-1897. They were travelling to Rebecca’s daughter, Kate, who resided at 130, North 10th Street, Brooklyn. Please see Extract No.6 for a copy of this manifest.

In 1913, Rebecca and Delia (i.e Bridget) came back to Ireland. We do not have evidence as to why this trip was made. They returned to Brooklyn in October of that year, departing Queenstown on the 17-Oct-1913, on board the Baltic, and arriving at New York on the 25-Oct-1913. They stated their closest relative to be Rebecca’s mother in law (and Delia’s grandmother) Mary Crofton of Cloondaff. Please see Extract No.6 for a copy of this manifest.

Stephen and Rebecca had the following issue registered to them:

i. Maria Crofton, Enniscoe, the child of Stephen CROFTON and Rebecca KELLY was baptised on the 05-Aug-1875. The sponsors were John Kelly and Catherine Crofton.

ii. Catherine Crofton, Enniscoe, the child of Stephen CROFTON and Rebecca KELLY was born on the 02-Jun-1877.

Catherine Crofton emigrated to the United States and in 1892 (1900 Census) resided at 130, North 10th Street, Brooklyn. In 1915 Catherine, who had married Charles Van Camp, an American man born in 1883, resided with her husband and mother in Brooklyn. Mr.Van Camp was a glass cutter. Catherine was a laundry worker. The family lived at 197, Powers Street, Booklyn. The property still stands today, and is a three story building with a basement.

iii. Eliza Crofton, Enniscoe, the child of Stephen CROFTON and Rebecca KELLY was born on the 15-Apr-1879.

Eliza Crofton emigrated to the United States in 1895 (1900 Census) and in 1900 and 1920 resided with her mother and siblings in

F. Maria Crofton, Cloondaff, the child of Thomas Crofton and Mary Coloran was baptised on the 23-Aug-1863. The sponsors were Martin Colloran and Biddy Colloran. Mary Crofton married a man named Conway, and in 1901, Mary was resident with her mother and sister (Honor) Conway in Cloondaff. Mary had a new born daughter, Norah Jane, who was born in Co.Mayo. It is possible that her husband was absent due to seasonal migration to England and Scotland to work on farms there, the census being taken up at the end of April. We do not have a record of this marriage or the birth of any issue from it.

G. Pat Crofton, Cloondaff, the child of Thomas Crofton and Mary Colloran was baptised on the 06-Sep-1865. The sponsors were Pat Colloran and Mary Colloran.

Patrick Crofton, Clondaff, the son of Thomas Crofton married on the 27-Jul-1905 Catherine Marley, Dunbridya, the daughter of Dominick Marley and Catherine Martin. The witnesses to the marriage were James Cormack of Cloondaaf and Mgt Dever of Gortnaheltia. Priest: J Kelly.

After marriage, Patrick and Catherine resided at Bracklagh, which is adjacent to Cloondaff. Patrick was a game keeper, as his father had been. They had the following issue:

i. Stephen Crofton, Cloondaff, the child of Patrick Crofton and Catherine Marley was born on the 22-Apr-1906. The sponsors were John Marley and Catherine Harte.

Nora resided with her widowed mother Mary in 1901, and in 1911 in Cloondaff. Mary had a grandson, born c.1903, also resident with her in 1911. It appears that this child was either the son of Martin or Thomas (B and E above respectively), although no record exists to support this.

Map of the civil parishes of Mayo, with, in red, Burrishoole (no.7) and Addergoole (no.23)
ADDERGOOLE is a Parish, in the barony of Tyrawley, county of Mayo, and province of Connaught, 5 miles (south by east) from Crossmolina; containing 6725 inhabitants. This parish is situated on Lough Conn, by which it is bounded on the north, and on the road from Crossmolina to Castlebar: It contains within its limits the greater portion of the stupendous mountain of Nephin, which rises to a height of 2640 feet above the level of the sea. The land generally is under an improved system of tillage; there are large tracts of bog and mountain, which have been reclaimed to a great extent; and limestone abounds in the parish. Castlehill is the seat of Major Cormick; Woodpark, beautifully situated on Lough Conn, of J. Anderson, Esq.; and Carrowkeel, of W. Bourke, Esq. A fair is held at Lahardane on the 29th of June, and at Ballagheen on the 24th of June. The Parish is in the diocese of Killala; the rectory is partly appropriate to the precentorship, and partly to the vicars choral, of the Cathedral of Christchurch, Dublin; the vicarage forms part of the union of Crossmolina. The tithes amount to £250, of which £13. 10s. is payable to the precentor, £111.10s to the vicars choral, and £125 to the vicar. The Roman Catholic Parish is co-extensive with that of the Established Church; the chapel is at Lahardane. There are two public schools, in which are about 130 boys and 30 girls; and six hedge schools, in which are about 160 boys and 70 girls. There are some remains of an old abbey at Addergoole, and also at Bofinan; and near Castlehill are vestiges of an ancient castle.\footnote{Extract from 'A Topographical Dictionary of Mayo' by Samuel Lewis, 1837.}
