Strong dollar makes US exporters Alexander pressure, or unfavorable economic growth prospects

Remittance Network March 11 (Bernama) -

For a recent US survey of business executives said that a strong dollar makes exporters frustrated, which may inhibit exporters next year investment plan.

Duke University (Duke University) quarterly "CFO Magazine" (CFO Magazine) Wednesday released the "Global Business Outlook Survey," a total of about 1000 global business managers participated in the survey, most of CFO.

Survey shows that large US exporters 2/3, said the dollar on their business had a negative impact. Nearly a quarter of large exporters expressed thus reduced capital spending plans. Total sales of these large exporters, there are at least a quarter from overseas.

From construction to manufacturing to managers from the pharmaceutical and other industries that in the past six months, the dollar strengthened against most major currencies had become the climate, which brings to their business potential risks.

Puig School of Management, Duke University (Duke Fuqua School of Management) •
R • Professor Campbell Harvey (Campbell R. Harvey), which is sponsored this survey director, said the united States is in the match euros, yen, or add Who yuan against the dollar among the most powerful of the vicious competition. He said that while the Fed and the US government letting these adverse competition inflicting, will swallow its own domestic exporters, profits decline and reduce employment prospects, expected to become unbearable everyone shirk.

According to the survey, nearly one-third of business managers expect further appreciation of the dollar against the euro will be 10%. These propositions dollar 10 percent of executives, among them, 13.8% said that currency appreciation will have a negative impact on capital spending plans, 8.6% of business managers are expected to negatively impact will affect recruitment plans. (The survey was launched March 6, since further dollar strength).

The strong economic recovery in the US dollar and increased purchasing power, especially for imported goods. At the same time, the European and Japanese market is more bleak, the major emerging markets, diminished output, reducing the demand for US exports.

These led to a record high US trade deficit, is not conducive to economic growth prospects. Over the past several decades, the United States exports to gross domestic product (GDP) rose steadily, exports stagnated would endanger growth.

And this is the Fed officials on economic growth trend is still waiting to see the reason they were also cautious on the outlook statements.

According to the Central Bank, the latest policy meeting, Fed officials expect the dollar will continue to exert pressure on the value of net exports to the United States, some of the participants pointed out that there is the risk of a further rise in the dollar.

The same survey from Duke University showed that 70 percent of US companies said the salary level is expected to increase by 3%. Technology industry, services and consulting, manufacturing, health care and other industries will be greater than 3% salary increase. Energy, retail and telecommunications industries expected to be below 2% salary increase.

0-100 as the reference value, the United States, Chief Financial Officer for the US economy hit 65 points, as since 2007 the US economy the most optimistic estimates.

While at the same time, only about 23% of the European CFO believes the ECB quantitative easing program will actually be fueling inflation.
