Weekly Top 5 Papers – December 17, 2018

1. A Backtesting Protocol in the Era of Machine Learning by Robert D. Arnott (Research Affiliates, LLC) and Campbell R. Harvey (Duke University – Fuqua School of Business) and Harry Markowitz (University of California at San Diego)
2. Mortgage Debt, Hand-to-Mouth Households, and Monetary Policy Transmission by Sumit Agarwal (National University of Singapore) and Yongheng Deng (University of Wisconsin – Madison – School of Business) and Quanlin Gu (Peking University) and Jia He (Nankai University) and Wenlan Qian (National University of Singapore – NUS Business School) and Yuan Ren (National University of Singapore (NUS) – NUS Business School)

3. A Brief Introduction to the Basics of Game Theory by Matthew O. Jackson (Stanford University – Department of Economics)
4. Initial Coin Offerings by Paul P. Morntaz (University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA))

5. Crime Follies: Overcriminalization, Independent Prosecutors, and the Rule of Law by Glenn Harlan Reynolds (University of Tennessee College of Law)

Did you like this article? Share it with your friends!

Written by Annemarie Nordquist

Annemarie is pleased to be a member of SSRN's team. In her personal time you can catch her reading, writing, and researching.

Leave a Reply

Your email address will not be published. Required fields are marked *

Comment